Dennis Patrick O'Hara recently completed a Ph.D. in Theology at the University of St. Michael's College, part of the Toronto School of Theology in the University of Toronto. The title of his thesis was "The Implications of Thomas Berry's Cosmology for an Understanding of the Spiritual Dimension of Human Health." An interest in theology, ecology, and human health informs his continuing involvement with the Elliott Allen Institute for Theology and Ecology at St. Michael's, and the Holy Cross Centre for Ecology and Spirituality. Dr. O'Hara is a licensed chiropractor and naturopath. His most recent publication is "'The Whole World...has appeared as a Transparent Manifestation of the Love of God': Portents of Merton as Eco-theologian" published in Volume 9 of The Merton Annual.

Donald P. St. John is Professor of Religion and Chair of the Department of Religion at Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. He earned his doctorate at Fordham University under Thomas Berry. He is editor of Teilhard Studies and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Teilhard Association. Don has written widely in the areas of ecological spirituality, Native American Religions and Thomas Merton. He has published articles on Merton's ecological thought in The Merton Annual and The Merton Seasonal. He is a member of International Thomas Merton Society.
