

About the author:

Donald Wayne Viney, Ph.D. received degrees in philosophy from Colorado State University (1977) and the University of Oklahoma (1979, 1982). He has taught philosophy and religion at Pittsburg State University (Kansas) since 1984 and is a three-time recipient of the title "University Professor." He is the author of Charles Hartshorne and the Existence of God (1985), senior editor of Hartshorne's book Creative Experiencing: A Philosophy of Freedom (2011), and has recently published, with George W. Shields, The Mind of Charles Hartshorne: A Critical Examination (2020). He has written on and translated works of the nineteenth century Breton philosopher, Jules Lequyer, and he is the author of dozens of scholarly articles and reviews on a variety of topics, including three previous articles on Teilhard. He serves on the editorial boards of Process Studies, The Midwest Quarterly, and the American Journal of Theology and Philosophy. Viney is also a singer and song-writer. His original song, "Teilhard's Fire," is based on a quotation from the essay "The Evolution of Chastity," written by Teilhard in 1934: "The day will come when, after harnessing the ether, the winds, the tides, gravitation, we shall harness for God the energies of love. And then, for a second time in the history of the world, man will have discovered fire." Some of Viney's compositions, including "Teilhard's Fire," are available at <http://digitalcommons.pittstate.edu>.